

hello, my name is jamison banham

i create stylish, clean and creative websites

Graphic, Web Designer and Internet Marketer

My interests are anything design related, online business, partying hard and enjoying life. Design is not just my job, it's my hobby, business, love, my life. For the short while I have been on this earth (going on 21 years) design has been a huge part of my life, so much that if I didn't have design I would be lost.

I have been making websites and graphics for a good part of 7 years with my first online project going online in 2001. I now work, study and live web and graphic design. I currently major in Graphic Design at Griffith University and work as the designer for a local web development company.
